Probst Electric breaks ground on new headquarters in the Power Industrial Park

On Friday, June 3, Probst Electric's held a groundbreaking ceremony for the construction of their new building located at the Power Industrial Park. Probst Electric, a Quanta Services company, with headquarters in Heber City is a professional electrical contractor providing services ranging from high and low voltage delivery services to communication installations.

The company is highly-regarded for their design build electrical projects. Starting with just two employees in 2004, Probst Electric has grown to 200 employees, as well as a second company Summit Line Construction which employs 150 people across the country.

Recognized by Utah Business Magazine as one of the Fast 50 in 2013, Utah's 50 fastest-growing companies. Founder Redgie Probst was recognized in 2013 as 40 under 40 to Watch. Probst attributes his company's success to the dedication of his employees, and the leadership of Karl Studer, COO/Vice President, and Riley Probst, CFO/Vice-President.

Probst Electric mission is to provide a highly-trained, professional work force delivering high-quality service in a wide range of projects through community-oriented, environmentally-conscious practices.

General contracting provided by Layton Construction, architecture and engineering provided by PGA&W Architects Inc. The estimated completion date for the new office building and storage/shop building is January, 2017.
